Place of Refuge (The Promised Land, #3) by David G. Woolley

When the tribes of Israel came into the Promised Land, God divided the land among them, with the exception of one tribe that did not receive a territory—the Levites. The Levites were to be priests and act as mediators between the Israelites and God, so they were given forty-eight cities throughout the Promised Land within all the other tribes' territories (Numbers 35:7-8).
